Celebrating you – the international community – in 2008

Dear Friends,

Welcome to the 2008-2009 International Directory — your guide to the World in Louisville!

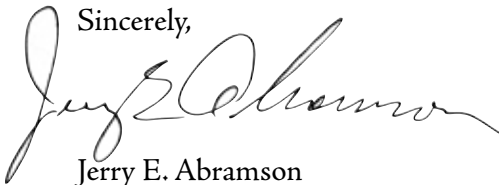

Louisville is truly a city on the move, with incredible energy and growth stemming from our diversity and our rich multicultural heritage and traditions. As our international community continues to grow and prosper, you will find more quality services, organizations, and unique international flair within these pages than ever before!

This past year has been an exciting one for our city, characterized by a number of bold projects and events that are transforming our community. My Office for International Affairs (OIA) continues to play an integral role in the development of these new initiatives, working to create a strong and unified city that capitalizes on our incredible diversity. Thanks to the vital efforts of our local business community to incorporate new international residents into the economic fabric of our city, Louisville earned national recognition in the Wall Street Journal this past year as a community of note that is successfully embracing multiculturalism as a strategy for overall prosperity.

As we welcome new groups of residents to our community, our strong partnerships will continue to be essential in realizing our collective vision of Louisville as a city recognized for its support and quality of life for all residents. Together, we can pave the way to progress. I would like to challenge you to find new ways to get involved in our international community in the coming year — by attending a new international event, volunteering your time and talents, learning a new language or exploring a new culture. Through the contributions of each individual, we can create a substantial positive impact on our community.

Thanks for helping make Louisville Possibility City!

Sincerely,

Jerry E. Abramson
Mayor

Connecting Your Government To You

Supporting the growing energy of our international community

Paul Gerrard

Dear Community Member,

Every year Louisville's quality of life continues to attract immigrants from around the world — most recently from Burma, Iraq, Nepal and Turkey. Today there are more than 80 languages represented in our public schools, highlighting the city's rich cultural diversity.

The Mayor's Office for International Affairs (OIA) supports and promotes our international community and this 2008 International Directory is one part of that effort. For more information on the OIA's work during the past year, please read the Community Report at the back of the directory.

The OIA is far from alone, however, in recognizing, supporting and celebrating diversity and culture. Special mention goes to the 2007 winners of the Mayor's International Awards for their efforts to create "an environment in which all internationals feel welcome and able to participate in the economic, social and cultural life of our great city." They are the Americana Community Center, Transit Authority of River City (TARC), World Affairs Council of Kentucky/Southern Indiana and Rev. John K. Dixon — recipient of the Mayor's Lifetime Achievement Award.

You, too, can support our international community by using and promoting the organizations and programs listed in this directory. If you want to find out more about Louisville's international community, sign up for our e-mail newsletter OIA Weekly Update at our website, www.louisvilleky.gov/international.

Be sure to join us on the Belvedere during Labor Day weekend for our signature annual event, WorldFest — which was bigger and better than ever in 2007. An estimated 100,000 people enjoyed:

- Two great days of entertainment from 34 bands and performers on two stages;
- Delicious ethnic food at 35 booths;
- The Parade of Cultures which featured about 300 people wearing native dress;
- The swearing-in of 601 new U.S. citizens in the largest naturalization ceremony ever held in Kentucky;
- Information and craft booths celebrating 75 countries and cultures.

Once again, thanks for your community-mindedness. Together, we can continue to support the growing energy of our international community.

Sincerely,

Paul Gerrard, Chairman
Mayor's International Affairs Advisory Council

The Louisville Metro Office for International Affairs (OIA) was established in 1999 to support and promote a vibrant, successful multicultural Louisville Metro community through awareness, advocacy and referral, with the vision to create an environment recognized for its supportive climate and quality of life. OIA focuses on connecting newcomers to community resources and information, economic and workforce development, immigrant and refugee resettlement, social services, language assistance, youth development, and international protocol for the Mayor. At OIA, we strive to create awareness throughout the community with our many outreach programs, highlighting the fact that our international neighbors enrich our community and make us stronger. Louisville, Kentucky is one of the few cities around the world with a fully functional municipal office dedicated to coordinating the city's efforts to foster a welcoming community and encourage growth on a global scale. Louisville is fortunate to have the support and enthusiasm of Mayor Jerry E. Abramson, who recognizes the great value in diversity and often reminds our citizens that cities that embrace our nation's growing international population will be the ones to succeed in the future.

"According to recent Census data, the total minority population - those of Hispanic origin or of races other than white - increased by 88 percent between 1980 and 2000 while the non-Hispanic white population grew by only 7.9 percent. Source: HispanicAd.com.

Hispanics, who represent 13 percent of the U.S. population, today account for 8 percent of new-vehicle buyers, and are the largest minority group in the new vehicle buying population

Hispanic women are a rapidly growing part of the U.S. population, with especially large representation in younger age groups. By 2050, Hispanic females are forecasted to comprise nearly one quarter of U.S. women.

Spurred by growing entrepreneurial trends and affluence among the nation's largest minority population, the increase is expected to come at a robust rate of 7.6 percent annually through at least 2010. The number of Hispanic-owned businesses in the United States is expected to grow 55 percent in the next six years to 3.2 million, with total revenues surging 70 percent to more than $465 billion, according to new estimates by Hispanic Business Mag."

Archdiocese of Louisville Office of Multicultural Ministry

Setting the Pace in Service and Leadership

M. Annette Mandley-Turner, Executive Director

An Archdiocesan Office designed to give direction and leadership to the full and holistic development of our growing and diverse Catholic communities within the Archdiocese of Louisville. OMM serves to resource the Archdiocese in its effort to respond both locally and nationally in order to foster holistic development from a cultural and pastoral perspective. It encourages the full participation of the multicultural community through the implementation of the Archdiocesan Strategic Plan in collaboration with various ethnic National Pastoral Plans.

COMMUNITY REPORT

Mission:

The Office for International Affairs Supports and Promotes a Vibrant, Successful, Interconnected, Multicultural Community Through Awareness, Advocacy and Referral.

The Louisville Metro Office for International

Affairs (OIA) was established in 1999 with the vision to create an environment recognized for its supportive climate and quality of life. OIA focuses on connecting newcomers to community resources and information, economic and workforce development, immigrant and refugee resettlement, social services, language assistance, youth development, and international protocol for the Mayor. An advisory council of 19 diverse members guides the work of the office.

A Profile of the Foreign Born Population

This study was conducted by the Urban Institute in Washington D.C. to help local officials better understand the needs of the region's international population and its impact on the local economy. OIA has been focusing on the reports recommendations, particularly looking at how we can better support and expand ESL opportunities for our local international population. For a copy of the report go to our website at www.louisvilleky.gov/international

AmeriCorps*VISTA

For the fourth consecutive year, OIA was proud to employ an AmeriCorps*VISTA Volunteer, Stephanie Wolfe. AmeriCorps* is a network of local, state and national service programs that connects more than 70,000 Americans each year in intensive service to meet our country's critical needs in education, public safety, health and the environment. AmeriCorps*VISTA provides full-time volunteers to nonprofit, faith-based and other community organizations, and public agencies to create and expand programs that better the lives of individuals and communities. At OIA, the VISTA works with other community organizations to help strengthen Louisville as a diverse and welcoming community.

COMMUNITY REPORT 2007

Community Language Bank

As Louisville's international population continues to grow, one of the principal roles of OIA is to address language gap and language access issues within city government. In 2007, OIA began the process of developing new initiatives to help city agencies provide equal and meaningful access to services for all residents, regardless of English proficiency.

As a service to both government entities and the community at large, OIA also maintains the Community Language Bank (CLB), an online database of independent, trained, culturally competent and professional interpreters in various languages. They are available to respond to requests for interpretation services from local service providers and individuals who are providing services to persons of limited English proficiency. All interpreters listed in the CLB are independent contractors and are not employees of Louisville Metro Government. To search the CLB database, visit www.louisvilleky.gov/international

Signature Program

Directory

The International directory acts as a resource guide for the international community to provide easy and free access to services. It also acts as an awareness tool, to demonstrate the diversity and vibrancy that our international population brings to the city, particularly to people who may otherwise not have access to the international community. The Office for International Affairs created the International Directory in 2004 in an effort to expand its services to the international population and Louisvillians alike. The directory provides information about local community groups, organizations, businesses and more that represent and serve our international population.

Signature Program

Darfur

OIA continues to participate in community events to raise the profile of the humanitarian crisis taking place in Darfur, Sudan and inspire the local community to get involved and make a difference. Events included collaboration and participation in A Day for Darfur, sponsored by Catholic Charities held in November 2007 and the Interfaith Prayer Service for Darfur, a joint effort of the Center for Interfaith Relations, Interfaith Paths to Peace, and local leaders representing different faith traditions, held in March 2008.

English as a Second Language Dialogue Program

The Office for International Affairs will hold a strategic dialogue with our immigrant/refugee English as a Second Language service providers, exploring new ways to connect them with Metro government support and resources and to provide for the establishment of new lines of communication between each of the core providers. This will serve to unify and strengthen our ever-evolving international community, to identify new areas of concern and discuss possible solutions, and to build new avenues for collaboration. It is only through our connectedness that, as individual agencies, we may each help our clients reap the full benefits of the community's resources.

Flags of the World

The Office for International Affairs maintains flags, representing over 150 nations and cultures from around the globe, which are used throughout the year at events, festivals, conferences and the annual Parade of Cultures during World-Fest. National flags are important cultural and patriotic symbols, reflecting the heritage of the people they represent. The incorporation of international flags in events and ceremonies can greatly enhance programming.

When planning an international event or ceremony our office can assist by loaning our international flags as well as explaining protocol for the proper display of flags for your particular program.

Signature Program

Immigrant Brown Bag series

The Brown Bag series consists of educational seminars. Each forum covers a specific topic for discussion, centered around the provision of health, human and educational services to the immigrant and refugee community in Louisville. The Office for International Affairs leads this effort in partnership with the Louisville Department of Housing and Family Services.

International Events Calendar

September has been traditionally known as International Month but it just isn't big enough to include all of Louisville's wonderful International events and festivals so we are now introducing a full 2008 International Event Calendar. You can find the calendar on Page 69 or keep up to date as new events are published with our online calendar at www.louisvilleky.gov/international

International Happy Hour

Each month, the Office for International Affairs hosts a casual networking opportunity at different restaurants, bars, clubs or social settings in the community. International Happy Hour offers attendees a chance to meet new people, learn about organizations or companies opened by internationals or delivering services to our international community, make connections and visit with friends and colleagues who serve or represent Louisville's internationals. Attendees are encouraged to bring business cards, flyers for upcoming events, program brochures and more to share as you enjoy complimentary appetizers and great company. International Happy Hour is on the third Thursday of each month from 4:30 - 7 p.m. at rotating locations. For locations call us at 574-4774.

COMMUNITY REPORT 2007

Mayor's Diversity Initiative

Recognizing the diversity represented in Louisville, the Office for International Affairs leads a new initiative for Louisville Metro Government. Louisville is a diverse, inclusive, prosperous and progressive community that values diversity, and Louisville Metro Government values a diverse workplace. In its community and business partnerships and outreach with residents, it recognizes that diversity is essential for innovation. These are the values that Louisville Metro Government utilizes and applies in the hiring process and in trainings, such as "Valuing Diversity" and "Tapas" and an introduction to the Spanish Language. In this way each employee brings richness to government.

Signature Program

General Diversity Training

(Part of Metro Training University)

When we think of diversity, we tend to picture racial, gender and cultural diversity. Though present in almost every organization, generational diversity is often overlooked. Class participants can learn about attitudes, behaviors and motivational buttons that characterize each generation. Bridging the generation gap will help diffuse tensions at work and increase communication.

Diversity: Valuing Differences

(Part of Metro Training University)

The Office for International Affairs and Metro Office of Human Resources, Compliance and Training Division, have partnered to provide this program to all Metro employees. This training provides Metro employees a venue to open communication to discuss differences, similarities and techniques to recognize blind spots and share insights.

MAYOR'S DIVERSITY INITIATIVE

Mayor's International Awards

Each year the Mayor recognizes businesses, organizations and individuals who have fostered an environment in which all citizens of Louisville, regardless of their country of origin, feel welcome and strive to create an environment where all international newcomers have the opportunity to fully participate in the economic, civic, social and cultural life of Louisville. In 2007 three outstanding organizations, Americana Community Center, Transit Authority of River City and the World Affairs Council of Kentucky/Southern Indiana, were presented with the awards at the Muhammad Ali Center. Rev. John Dixon was also presented with the lifetime achievement Award. The awards were generously sponsored by Middleton Reutlinger.

Signature Program

Metro Solutions / Language Access

Metro Solutions is a government program to address and solve issues within the community through workshops. In 2006, through a Metro Solutions workout to address the need of the growing international population, a proposal with recommendations on language access was presented to the Mayor. In 2007, implementations have begun.

Mural Project

OIA participated in a collaborative planning process for the second installment of the Refugee Youth Mural Project on the north wall of ValuMarket at Iroquois Manor. Community partners Kentucky Refugee Ministries Youth Services and the 4 Corners mural group will spearhead the completion of a second refugee youth mural project in 2008, providing participants with an educative opportunity to create a lasting piece of community art while honoring the unique heritage and history of each participating ethnic group.

“Weekly Update” e-Newsletter

The OIA Weekly Update is a tool designed to help Louisville residents connect with events and news highlighting the activities of Louisville's vibrant and diverse international community. Distributed to over 1,000 people each week, this is an easy way to stay up to date on international events, festivals, job opportunities and much more. OIA plans to unveil a web-based format for the newsletter in 2008, with new features to better serve the community. To sign up to receive the Weekly Update visit www.louisvilleky.gov/international.

Signature Program

Visiting delegations

OIA hosts various international delegations each year. With each delegation that visits our city we teach them about our programs, government policies and involvement with the international community. We also learn about how other cultures view our city and how we can grow as a community by sharing experience and knowledge with one another. During this past year we hosted groups from: Argentina, China, Costa Rica, Germany, Ghana, Poland, Portugal, Russia, Rwanda.

WorldFest

With over 80 languages spoken in the Louisville public schools and 50 percent of the city's population growth over the past 15 years coming from international residents, Louisville is more culturally-diverse than ever before. The celebration of these unique cultures in our community culminates in the annual WorldFest, the Office for International Affairs two day festival on Labor Day weekend which hosts the largest collection of local ethnic restaurants, vendors and exhibitors at any one event in Kentucky. It offers a wide array of cuisines, crafts and educational possibilities and is an opportunity to become more familiar with the international community while honoring the traditions of our past and our future. Last year's WorldFest attracted over 100,000 people and was listed as the 13th largest regional festival by Business First.
